Services for Virginia's Agriculture Industry and the Media

On the Air

The Virginia Market News Service produces daily radio broadcasts, Monday-Friday, and distributes to stations throughout the state. The reports are tailored to the time of day, and include information such as grain prices, futures quotes, and livestock auction and state-graded sale results. An additional broadcast is produced on Friday afternoon that gives a snapshot of weekly trends. Our broadcasts are also stored on our telephone hotline and on our website.

On the Web

The Virginia Market News Service website provides a one-stop shop for market reports from around the state and the nation. Looking for results from a cattle auction in Wythe County? We've got that.

Looking for a hog report from New Holland, Pa? We've got that too. Our website provides links to information regarding cattle auction and sales, cotton, fruit and vegetables, grain, hay, peanuts, poultry and more. Our archive feature allows you to search for these reports from the past, in addition to the current form. The site also houses copies of our most recent newsletters and radio broadcasts.

In Print

The Virginia Market News Service takes market information regarding the sale and trade of livestock, fruits, vegetables, hay and grain and produces daily reports on the results. Our reports can be found online and in newspapers across the state. In addition, the "Ag Brief" is produced every Friday, which provides a snapshot of the weekly cattle and grain trends.

Our History

Virginia Market News Service is proud to celebrate our 100th year of operation in 2016. Our story begins in 1916 with a single daily apple report from Winchester. Today, we produce reports on livestock, grain, fruits and vegetables from all over the Commonwealth.

Our reports are available by web, U.S. Mail, phone and radio. As we look toward our next 100 years, we celebrate our humble beginning and strive to continue bringing Virginia the latest agriculture reports in an accurate and timely fashion.

For more information on our history and our offerings, please visit our 100th anniversary page at <http://www.vdacs.virginia.gov/markets-and-finance-market-news-100.shtml>
