Virginia Grown Apple Guide

- Fresh apples are a delicious and nutritious snack. An average apple contains around 130 calories.
- 2 pounds (lbs.) of apples make 3 cups of applesauce. 1 bushel of apples makes 14-20 quarts of applesauce.
- To keep apples crisp, keep them cold. Apples ripen 8 to 10 times faster at room temperature. Dip apples in lemon juice after slicing to prevent browning.

Thanks to Virginia's geographically diverse climate, landscape and agricultural regions, apple season begins in late July and peaks in October and November, with apple festivals and on farm events taking place across the Commonwealth*. Consumers can continue to source Virginia apples at local markets, farm stands and farmers’ markets through April.

*It is recommended that you contact orchards directly when planning your visit for exact hours and availability. Visit www.virginiaapples.net for a listing of orchards near you.
